

Chester Ridley Crum Watersheds Association and Penn State Brandywine jointly welcome

Jennifer Nichols

GreenWeaver Landscapes

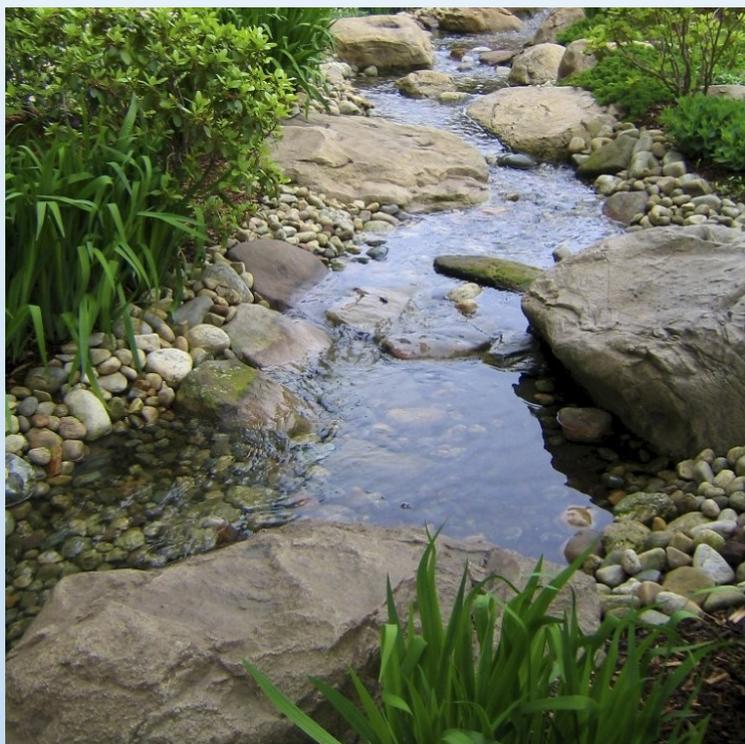

Sunday, March 8, 2015

2:00 pm to 3:30 pm

Penn State Brandywine
Tomezsko Building Auditorium
25 Yearsley Mill Road
Media, PA 19063

“Sustainable Landscape Management for Landowners”

How sustainable practices in land management create a healthier home landscape.

Topics Include:

- How soil and plant management affects water quality
- Using stormwater as a resource to sustain landscapes
- Best practices for the design and everyday maintenance of your landscape

Visit www.crcwatersheds.org or call 610-359-1440 for more information and to register for this free event.

Jennifer Nichols has been involved in horticulture for over 20 years. Understanding that traditional landscape methods can be damaging to the environment, Jen became involved in sustainable landscaping, and started GreenWeaver Landscapes, LLC in 2008 with her husband, Greg. Jen is active in continuing education in ecology and landscape design. She co-teaches the Landscape for Life program at Longwood Gardens. Jennifer annually volunteers as a Site Coordinator for the CRC Watersheds Association stream cleanup.